

GREEN Fodder:

Thoughts to Chew On from the PLAN IT GREEN team

June, 2010

In This Issue

The Gulf, the Redwoods and LEED for Landscapes

facebook

Our Organization

Dear Michael,

It's after Memorial Day, so we will concede that means it's summer.

And this summer will be eventful for Plan it Green. We will open an office in Arcata with such grown-up amenities as a permanent phone number and address. More important, we are staffing up with a part time executive director and a full time AmeriCorps VISTA member.

Meanwhile, we are always interested in knowing what your interests are. To let us know, visit our Facebook fan page here:

facebook

→ Green Reading

California has resisted offshore oil drilling for

For more information
on Plan It Green, check out our website at www.humboldtplanitgreen.com

California has resisted offshore oil drilling for 40 years. While we don't get everything right, the disaster in the Gulf of Mexico certainly endorses this decision. Here's a thoughtful column from the Huffington Post on the impacts on a way of life:

Can't look/can't look away

The Nature Conservancy chose its 10 favorite state parks in California. Of course, no such list would be right without Humboldt's Sequoia Sempervirens. The Times-Standard's story on this is here:

Greenbiz.com reports on testing LEED for Landscapes. Geek out here:

Events by our Friends

The folks at Alternative Building Center are celebrating their 3rd birthday this Saturday. For more info, click here:

Farmers markets are lively again this summer. For the North Coast Growers Association schedule of the markets in Eureka, McKinleyville and Arcata, click here:

This newsletter

This monthly newsletter goes out monthly to approximately people on the North Coast and beyond. If you have a friend who should be part of this community, please forward this message to them. If you do not wish to receive this message, just click the "unsubscribe" link below.

